

LGP Marlow team taking on more solicitors

LGP Solicitors, based in the heart of Marlow, Buckinghamshire, has expanded its team further in order to deal with a continuing increase in level of demand on their services. New to the team of solicitors, known for offering an approachable and friendly legal service, are Anne Duguid and Pauline Carlin.

Anne, who qualified in 1991 specialises in Wills, Probate and general private client work. She practised for HM Forces, Germany and in the North East of England for a number of years and now, having brought up her young family, Anne joins LGP's Private Client Department.

Pauline has worked for LGP as a paralegal for many months and is now completing her training contract with the firm. She is focusing on Property including Landlord and Tenant issues.

Timothy Graham said "Taking Pauline and Anne on at this time has considerably strengthened our team. They have impressed us with their commitment, knowledge and potential, they fit well with the rest of the practice and we can now offer even more to our clients."

The practice, which provides services to both private and corporate clients, was set up in January 2008 by three partners, Patrick Land, Timothy Graham, and Keith Green of the dissolved Cripps and Shone. They offer the local community all key legal services including Property and Conveyancing, Dispute Resolution, Wills, Trusts and Probate and matters regarding Family and Children.
